Notes for the Apprentice:

Purpose

This document has been developed as an exemplar recording form for apprentice's self-assessment. It can be used to evaluate apprentice's readiness for End-point Assessment.

This document provides a template for summative self-assessment and reflective practice. Apprentices can use this document when reviewing their learning and development over the course of the apprenticeship and as a tool to prepare for their gateway to End-point Assessment.

Apprentices can review the criteria for each area of the Standard and self-assess their competence against the knowledge and skills required.

This self-assessment touches upon all aspects of your role and helps you prepare for your professional discussion.

Try to provide real work examples and experiences and reflect on these, what went well, not so well, what will you do differently as a result of reflecting on your practices, knowledge, skills, and behaviours.

Module A: Main tasks and responsibilities according to job role.

Reflect on your job role and responsibilities as a Lead Adult Care Worker.

How you have supported individuals with their physical, social, emotional, sensory needs and when you have monitored health and wellbeing, what went well or not so well, is there anything you would do differently?

What are your limitations of your role and when have you needed to access specialist knowledge or support when not confident or skilled to perform a task. What did you do?

When have you needed to take the initiative what did you do and what did you learn from this?

Reflect on how you are involved in developing, maintaining and updating care plans and making sure the plan is person centred. Think about how have you ensured the individual has participated, and how have you escalated changes to the right person or professional?

What information did you provide to individuals to ensure informed consent? As a Lead adult care worker, how have you supported others to ensure informed consent is gained before performing tasks?

How do you ensure the dignity and inclusion of the individual and others and ensure equality? (B)

What did you learn from these tasks, what would you do differently next time?

Provide examples of some relevant Standards, and Codes of Practice.

How have you applied these within your role, think about Regulations, Policies and Procedures, what are their purpose and where can you access these?

How have these regulations and codes of practice impacted on your role?

Module B: Rights and Behaviours is embedded throughout this document

Module C: The Importance of communication

How did you communicate with the individuals in your care using different methods and how have you overcome barriers to communication including environmental, cultural and language barriers, verbal and non-verbal methods?

How have you communicated showing empathy, compassion and understanding towards individuals? (B)

How did you find about how your individuals communicate and used their preferred method?

Module D: Support individuals to remain safe from harm (Safeguarding)

Reflect on your workplace policies on recognising and reporting potential abuse, including the whistleblowing policy and process.

How do you support others to recognise and respond to signs of abuse?

What is your understanding of abuse?

What conflicts or dilemmas have you encountered, how have you dealt with these considering your duty of care?

What have you learnt from these, what will you do differently if abuse was suspected or disclosed?

Give an example of how you have or how you would report any concerns following your organisational policy and procedure.

Reflect on a time you have witnessed unsafe practice and how you have responded.
Would you do anything differently, what did you learn from this situation?
If you haven't witnessed unsafe practice, explain what this could be and how you would deal with the situation, what you would do?

What are the local and national safeguarding strategies and agencies including legislation? What is your role in working in partnership with these agencies?
Reflect on the impact these have on your role and duty of care.

Module E: Promote health and wellbeing for individuals they support and work colleagues.

Reflect on your knowledge and understanding of the health and safety responsibilities of yourself, your employer, and others. Have you learnt anything different as a result of your own training and development? Think about how you carry out infection control, moving and handling and fire safety tasks following your policies and procedures, reflect on your understanding and how your practice has improved over the past year.

Reflect on a time you have promoted healthy eating and hydration with individuals. What professionals have you contacted when there was a change in diet or fluid intake, weight loss or weight gain?
How do you report, record and monitor these changes?
What barriers did you encounter, what went well or not so well?

When you have used a risk assessment which is person centred and promoted others to use this?
Reflect on a time you have developed a risk assessment to enable an individual's choice and keep them safe, including moving and handling.

Module F: Work professionally and seek to develop own professional development.

What professional relationships do you have with the people you support, colleagues and other professionals?

How do you take the initiative to form a professional relationship with outside professionals?

How do you and your staff teamwork within clear, safe and professional boundaries, and in the best interest of the individual being supported?

Reflect on why these professional relationships are important and what are the positive outcomes and challenges you may encounter and what have you learned from these interactions, what do you do differently within your practice as a result of these professional relationships?

How do you monitor and supervise other workers in your lead role?

Reflect on how your support, supervision or mentoring has improved practices within the staff team.

How do you evaluate and improve your own knowledge and skills? Think about reflective practice, supervision, feedback and learning opportunities.

How do you keep your continuous personal development up to date?

Reflect on your learning and development, how has your knowledge, skills and behaviours improved, did you learn anything new and how has this been put into practice?

Think about a time you have carried out some research relevant to an individual's support needs and how did this benefit the individual.

How have you carried out this research and shared this information with others?

Reflect on the benefits of this knowledge, what did you learn? What do you differently as a result of this research?
